(3) In any case where, by reason of bankruptcy or insolvency of the employee, a pension, gratuity or other award is not granted or where a pension or other award ceases by reason of the bankruptcy or insolvency of the pensioner, it shall be lawful for the Minister from time to time, during the remainder of that person's life, or during such shorter period or periods either continuous or otherwise as he shall think fit, to cause all or any part of the moneys to which such person would have been entitled by way of pension, gratuity or other award had he not become a bankrupt or insolvent, to be paid to, or applied for the maintenance and personal support or benefit of, all or any, to the exclusion of the other or others, of the following persons, namely, such pensioner himself and any wife, child or children of his in such proportions and manner as the Minister thinks proper, and such moneys shall be paid or applied accordingly and moneys applied for the discharge of debts of the employee or pensioner shall, for the purposes of this subsection, be regarded as applied for his benefit.

(4) When a person to whom a pension or other award has not been granted or whose pension or other award has ceased under this section, obtains a full and proper discharge from his bankruptcy or insolvency, his pension or other award shall be restored to him with effect from the date of such discharge.

Pension, etc., to cease on conviction

23. (1) If any person to whom a pension or other award has been granted under this Part is sentenced to death or penal servitude or any term of imprisonment by any court for any offence, the Minister may direct that such pension or other award shall forthwith cease and thereupon such pension or other award shall cease accordingly:

Provided that the pension or other award shall be restored with retrospective effect in the case of a person who at any time after conviction receives a free pardon.

(2) Where a pension or award ceases under subsection (1) the Minister shall cause all or any part of the moneys to which the pensioner would have been entitled by way of a pension or other award to be paid to or applied for the benefits of any wife, child or children of the pensioner, or after the expiration of his sentence, also for the benefit of the pensioner himself, in the same manner and subject to the same qualifications and restrictions as in the case of bankruptcy or insolvency.

Pension, etc., may cease on accepting employment in certain companies or in engaging in certain occupations for gain

24. (1) If any pensioner to whom a pension has been granted under this Act, becomes either a director of any company, the principal part of whose business is in any way directly concerned with Malaysia, or is employed by any such company in Malaysia or engages in any occupation for gain in Malaysia without the prior permission of the Minister in writing, it shall be lawful for the Minister to direct that such pension or award shall cease accordingly:

Provided that it shall be lawful for the Minister on being satisfied that the pensioner in respect of whose pension any such direction shall have been given, has ceased to be a director of such company or to be employed by any such company in Malaysia or has ceased to be engaged in such occupations, as the case may be, to give directions for the restoration of such pension, with retrospective effect if he shall see fit, to such date as he shall specify, and such pension shall be restored accordingly.

(2) Subsection (1) shall not apply to a pensioner who has been retired from the service for a period of not less than five years or who has attained the age of sixty years.

Derivative pension or gratuity where an employee dies in service or after retirement

25. (1) Where an employee dies in service and would have become eligible to be granted a pension or gratuity had he retired at the date of his death in the circumstances described in paragraph 12(c), the Minister may grant to such of his dependants as the Minister may think fit, a derivative pension or gratuity appropriate to his case, or if there are no dependants, to his legal personal representatives, a derivative gratuity; and where a derivative pension is granted, such a derivative pension may be paid for a period not exceeding twelve and a half years with effect from the date immediately following the date of the death of the employee.

(2) Where an employee who has retired on pension from the service dies within the period of twelve and a half years of his date of retirement, the Minister may grant to his widow or his widow and minor children or his minor children a derivative pension of the same amount as the pension which was paid or payable to the pensioner on account of his retirement, for a period not exceeding the difference between the period of twelve and a half years and the period during which the pension was paid or payable to the pensioner.

(3) Where a derivative pension is granted under this section to any dependant in respect of the death of an employee the pension so granted shall take into account the compensation awarded under any written law relating to workmen's compensation or other social security benefits for the time being in force.

(4) Where a dependant who is not entitled to such workmen's compensation or social security benefits is eligible to choose to receive either a derivative pension under this section or a pension or allowance under any written law for the time being in force, the grant of a derivative pension under this section by the Minister shall only be determined if the dependant elects to forgo the payment of a pension or allowance under such written law for the time being in force.

(5) A widow in respect of whom a derivative pension is granted under this section shall cease to be eligible for such a pension upon her re-marriage.

(6) A minor child in respect of whom a derivative pension is granted under this section shall cease to be eligible for such a pension upon such child attaining the age of eighteen years or upon marriage below that age.
